CENTRAL ASIAN STUDIES ONLINE PROGRAM

DURATION: FEBRUARY 1 - APRIL 30, 2021

The Central Asia Program (CAP) is happy to announce the launch of the online Central Asian Studies Program for individuals from Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, and Azerbaijan. Part of the Institute for European, Russian, and Eurasian Studies (IERES) at The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs, the Central Asia Program has designed this unique and tailor made online program for students and mid-career professionals who seek to strengthen their research and writing skills in Central Asian affairs, as well as gain experience in grant writing and non-profit management. The program is ideal for those who want to expand their knowledge in Central Asian affairs without committing to a long-term degree program.

Why Central Asian Studies Program?

As part of the Institute for European, Russian, and Eurasian Studies, the #1 university-affiliated regional studies center in the U.S., our program offers:

- A platform for the exchange of ideas that builds lasting intellectual networks, both among Central Asians and between them and the U.S. policy, scholarly, and activist communities;
- A tailor-made training on how to get published;
- Advanced knowledge about the Central Asian region;
- Enhanced analytical skills and methodological research skills;
- Oral and written communication skills development;
- A complementary project-based, grant-writing and non-profit management training
- An alumni structure within which to foster the visibility both individually and as a group in order to influence a Central Asian readership
